/EINPresswire.com/ -- VersaTrial, the clinical research site enablement and engagement platform, is proud to announce a partnership with the American Oncology Network (AON). AON will employ VersaTrial's Study Organizer across its expansive network of community-based oncology research sites.

This collaboration enables AON's clinical research staff to adeptly manage the numerous technologies, login credentials, and external contacts essential for each clinical trial. Designed specifically with the needs of research site staff in mind, the VersaTrial Study Organizer collaboratively consolidates vital study information into a user-friendly interface accessible to the entire study team. As a result, AON physicians and research staff can devote more of their time and resources to patient care and ensuring protocol quality.

Joining a thriving community of research sites, hospitals, and academic medical centers, AON's network, representing more than 100 physicians across 19 states, anticipates substantial benefits from using VersaTrial. Surveyed VersaTrial users report improvements in productivity and workflow, reduction in burden, better collaboration, and ultimately, higher job satisfaction.

"We are excited to adopt VersaTrial at AON," says Katie Goodman, VP of Clinical Research at AON. "We believe that this tool will not only help us manage the complexity of our work but also enhance the quality of care we can offer to patients. The VersaTrial solution aligns perfectly with our mission of making cancer care better, and we look forward to the positive impact it will have on our operations."

Mike Wenger, VersaTrial founder and CEO, shares the excitement. "I'm honored to see our technology facilitating important work in the field of oncology," says Wenger. "Our goal is to simplify the technological landscape of clinical trials so that researchers can focus on what they do best - improving patient outcomes. We are proud to support the important work at the American Oncology Network, and to help their team boost productivity and quality of care network wide."
