

New Social-Emotional Learning Children's Book Models Good Communication Through the Relationships of Kids and Their Cats

Featuring cats around the world, How Cats Say I Love You teaches kids to share their emotions in a healthy way by acknowledging that it's okay to feel not okay

WASHINGTON, DC, UNITED STATES, August 21, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- This social-emotional learning picture book is not only full of fun and playful feline friends, but also important insights into how we can demonstrate empathy and compassion toward others' emotions--and our own. We are excited to introduce author and weather anchor Guy Brown's second book, How Cats Say I Love You.

Cats are more than just cuddly critters: they also get nervous, hyper, relaxed, lazy, or angry—just like us! It falls on us to discover what our furry friends are trying to communicate: are they playfully chirping or peacefully purring? Is their tail wrapped around your legs or tucked between their own? Maybe they need some time alone, or maybe they're hungry for a treat! Featuring a diverse cast of children and a colorful range of cats from all around the world, this book teaches young readers about all the ways their friends—human and feline alike—share their feelings.

This social-emotional learning picture book will be available September 5, 2023.

Readers learn to pay attention to the emotions of their friends—human and feline alike.

In a world where primary education is increasingly online, away from busy classrooms and social problem-solving, learning empathy is more important than ever. Best for readers ages 2-7, How Cats Say I Love You shows young kids how both humans and felines communicate their emotions. This picture book teaches kids to pay attention to the social cues around them. By recognizing when their cat is angry and learning how to respond to their needs, kids will be empowered to apply those new skills to their friends and family.

This book encourages kids to think about healthy ways to share their own emotions.

Janan Cain, author of the bestselling books The Way I Feel and The Way I Feel Too, calls this social-emotional learning read “A fun and engaging book with lively illustrations” that “teaches young children to explore emotions and communication with the help of cats from around the world. A valuable resource for teachers and parents alike.”

“

Teaches young children to explore emotions and communication with the help of cats from around the world. A valuable resource for teachers and parents alike.”

Janan Cain, author of The Way I Feel and The Way I Feel Too

Even when a character is sad, angry, or overstimulated, the illustrations by Davide Ortú maintain a warm, cheerful palette throughout the book. This tells readers that all emotions are okay to feel; sometimes you just need time alone or to take a break. The fuzzy linework and textured swathes of color are inviting to readers both young and old. The diverse cast of characters allows children of many different nationalities to identify with the story or find their own household cats on the pages.

Beyond the lively illustrations, parents, librarians, and educators will love this book because of how it helps fuel children’s observations of the world around them and can inform their interactions with family members, friends, and peers. How Cats Say I Love You is a great way to ignite a conversation between a child and their caregiver about understanding and respecting physical and emotional boundaries. Above all, this book gives examples of healthy ways to communicate and respond to social stimuli.

Author and TV meteorologist Guy Brown can be seen forecasting the weather on-air today in the Big Apple, New York City. Previously, he spent several years as a weather anchor in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area of Minnesota. He enjoys volunteering at local elementary schools, where he shares his passion for meteorology with children. How Cats Say I Love You is his second children's book, inspired by his beloved pet cat, Rosalie. His first book, Look Up to See What the Weather Will Be, is an award-winning book about meteorology. He also dabbles in acrylic painting, and is an active member of the National Weather Association and the National Association of Black Journalists.

Davide Ortu is an Italian artist now living in Spain. He studied art in Cagliari Arts Lyceum FOISO FOIS, Sardinia. He began as a graphic designer in advertising before moving to Madrid, where he discovered the world of children's illustrations. Through the use of intense colors, atmospheres between dreams and reality, and fantastic elements, his artwork stops time to show the biggest emotions in the smallest people.

Platypus Media is a small independent press in Washington, D.C. Our books are distributed to the trade by the National Book Network [NBNbooks.com (domestic) and NBNi.co.uk (international)]. For more information about our publications, to arrange author interviews, for direct or bulk purchase pricing, or to request a review copy, please contact us. Cover images and sample content are available at PlatypusMedia.com.

How Cats Say I Love You

Ages 2-7 • 8 x 8" • 32 Pages

Hardback ($16.95): 9781951995133

eBook ($13.99): 9781951995140

Caitlin Burnham

Platypus Media

+ +1 202-465-4798

email us here

Visit us on social media:

Facebook

Twitter

LinkedIn

Instagram

This press release can be viewed online at: <https://www.einpresswire.com/article/651125443>

EIN Presswire's priority is source transparency. We do not allow opaque clients, and our editors try to be careful about weeding out false and misleading content. As a user, if you see something we have missed, please do bring it to our attention. Your help is welcome. EIN Presswire, Everyone's Internet News Presswire™, tries to define some of the boundaries that are reasonable in today's world. Please see our Editorial Guidelines for more information.

© 1995-2023 Newsmatics Inc. All Right Reserved.