A Partnership for Unparalleled Care

Allied Physicians Group and Pariva Health, in collaboration with the LEGO Foundation, Announce Strategic Partnership to Transform Support for Neurodivergent Children

The partnership between Pariva Health and Allied Physicians Group will positively impact the lives of children with developmental delays in a major way.”

Kerry Fierstein, MD, Chief Executive Officer of Allied Physicians Group

Pariva Health, in collaboration with the LEGO Foundation, has been at the forefront of innovation with their Family Support Program (FSP). Designed to empower families of children with developmental delays, the FSP provides comprehensive support from pre-diagnosis to post-diagnosis and in schools. By focusing on the unique needs of children and families, the FSP offers targeted family interventions that foster growth, understanding, and resilience.

Internationally known under the brand name Mom's Belief, Pariva Health has successfully served more than 3,000 children in seven countries. Their ground-breaking approach earned the 2019 Most Innovative Project Award at the United Nations.

"The partnership between Pariva Health and Allied Physicians Group will positively impact the lives of children with developmental delays in a major way," said pediatrician Kerry Fierstein, MD, Chief Executive Officer at Allied Physicians Group. "Pariva's skill-based approach coupled with their psychosocial family support helps families give their child the tools to learn and grow."

The Pariva logo features the word "Pariva" in a purple sans-serif font. Above the letter "i" is a colorful icon consisting of several small dots in blue, yellow, and red, arranged in a circular pattern.The LEGO Foundation logo features the words "The LEGO Foundation" in a black sans-serif font. The word "LEGO" is in a larger, bold font. A small red heart icon is positioned to the right of the word "Foundation".

Pariva Health, leaders in supporting families with children who have confirmed or suspected neurodevelopmental needs, announces partnership with Allied Physicians Group

Nitin Bindlish, Founder and CEO of Pariva Health, expressed his approval for the partnership, saying, "This alliance with Allied Physician Group marks a monumental step in our mission to transform the lives of neurodivergent children and their families. Together with our supportive partner, the LEGO Foundation, we are confident that our Family Support Program will expand its impact and continue its success on a global scale."

The Family Support Program is a comprehensive initiative that provides targeted care for families with children experiencing developmental delays. This approach includes pre-diagnosis support and post-diagnosis interventions, emphasizing conditions such as Autism, ADHD, Down syndrome, and cerebral palsy. By utilizing innovative, play-based techniques, the FSP makes learning enjoyable and engages families, enhancing the bond between child and caregiver.

The partnership with Allied Physician Group, a network of over 150 physicians across 35 locations in New York, will leverage clinical expertise and cutting-edge technology that has made Pariva Health (powered by Mom's Belief) a global leader. This collaboration ensures that the Family Support Program's resources reach even more families, making a meaningful difference in their lives.
