ANH-USA has emerged as a leading advocate for integrative health practices and policies, championing the cause of holistic wellness and natural approaches to healthcare. Its dedicated efforts have not only raised awareness about the benefits of integrative health but have also been instrumental in shaping legislation to support the natural health sector. As an advocacy leader on critical natural health issues, ANH-USA most recently issued a groundbreaking report, which triggered national and international media attention, exposing the presence of dangerous levels of PFAS "forever chemicals" in supermarket kale. The nonprofit has also defended Americans' access to quality dietary supplements and fought the censorship of free speech about the benefits of natural products.

"The Alliance for Natural Health USA is both humbled and honored to receive the Nonprofit Excellence Award at The Beljanski Integrative Cancer Conference," said Robert Verkerk, PhD, Executive and Scientific Director of ANH-USA. "We greatly appreciate this recognition and look forward to the opportunity of coming together with so many remarkable leaders and visionaries in the fields of cancer and integrative health this October."

All proceeds from the Beljanski Integrative Cancer Conference will go to cancer research and, most specifically, to a new program on breast cancer stem cells. Cancer stem cells are considered to be responsible for metastasis, and eradicating them could finally mean the end of the cancer scourge as we know it.
