With over 650 hours of specialized management training, Chris Scully leverages his expertise in contractor business consulting. Supported by meticulous analysis of more than 8,000 pages on management and organization, Chris offers customized strategies for operational excellence in the construction industry, making him a driving force for sustainable success.

After 23 years of experience as an executive and business owner, Chris Scully noticed a common set of challenges faced by contractors and remodelers. Construction businesses are often plagued by poor cost management, disorganization, employee turnover, and a lack of efficient systems.

Chris created Action Management Pros to transform contractor coaching for these companies. He and his coaching team work to address those pain points through personalized strategies and support owners in changing their mindset.

Action Management Pros offers comprehensive business analysis evaluating strengths, weaknesses, finances, processes, and growth opportunities; custom strategic planning aligned with each client's unique goals; process improvement to increase productivity, profitability, and efficiency; and succession and exit strategy development for long-term business continuity.

The contractor coaching process at Action Management Pros begins with a consultation call to discuss needs. After an initial meeting to understand goals and challenges, Chris and his team conduct an analysis of the business's systems, finances, team dynamics, and growth or exit opportunities if the contractor is a good fit.

Using these insights, they develop a tailored strategic business plan outlining steps to efficiently address challenges and achieve objectives. The contractor is responsible for actively executing the plan while receiving AMP's guidance and support. Through regular coaching sessions, Chris Scully or another professional helps the business owner implement the plan, overcome obstacles, refine strategies, and grow their business to unlock its full potential.

Chris has achieved remarkable results for business owners using his coaching methods.

"Chris has helped our team and myself especially to focus," said K.R., a satisfied, previous client. "We were able to add 10 additional escrow so far this year and are on track to almost double our business this year."

Action Management Pros is the most progressive go-to partner for companies looking to boost growth and thrive long-term. Chris and his associates offer free consultations to prospective clients interested in transforming their business and mindset.
