diverse talents and resources across the global technology landscape.

Lyrid's Constellation Partners is a blend of values, goals, and strategies. It's about building dynamic partnerships across diverse domains, from cloud resellers, system integrators, to managed service providers and technology companies. Lyrid's commitment to a partner-first philosophy shines brightly, offering a taste of multi-cloud, Kubernetes infrastructure—an environment that radiates scalability and high-performance.

Constellation Partners come in all shapes and sizes, including cloud consultants, SaaS companies, development bootcamps, data centers, and software development agencies. Lyrid engineers teach online Kubernetes courses, developers build new tech for Lyrid clients, and partnerships work together to cut costs. They all have one goal: to fight the high prices, or "cloudflation," set by big public cloud providers. By forming Constellation Partners, they're making cloud computing more fair while opening up a new path for innovation without high costs. Through Lyrid's expanded partner offerings, they're not just creating revenue opportunities for partners; they're building bridges that connect across borders, cultures, and industries, uniting the global technology community in a shared mission.

The Lyrid Constellation Partner program offers more than benefits - it offers a partnership that pays dividends:

- Priority access to a global tech ecosystem
- 24/7 engineering support
- Collaborative product training, sales and marketing assistance
- Revenue sharing and competitive hosting prices

The Lyrid Constellation Partner program is the company's latest initiative to expand the global tech ecosystem. Through strategic partnerships, Lyrid aims to help everyone become more profitable while accessing the technology that is often controlled by big cloud companies. Lyrid's CEO, Handoyo Sutanto, says, "Strong relationships within business are pivotal to growth and success. We want to create an ecosystem of these relationships with companies eager to reshape the tech landscape for the better."
