Andreas Jacobi, Audiotool CEO and Co-Founder.

Audiotool's mission is to foster creativity and collaboration through music by making professional audio production accessible to anyone in the world. dublab's focus has been to advance the growth of positive music, arts, and culture. With these respective missions and audience in mind, both organizations have come together to present this live event from a Hollywood production studio.

"To bring these two communities together will make it possible for our local LA crowd as well as our respective international audience to get to know one another and the music that's at the heart of both communities."

"We are thrilled to join forces with dublab and present this unique event, which not only celebrates 13 years of music created on Audiotool but also communities that have been growing organically at dublab and audiotool, which both are all about positive feedback, learning, inclusivity and inspiration" said Andreas Jacobi, Audiotool CEO and Co-Founder.
