characterized by the abnormal accumulation of fat cells primarily in the legs and hips. The newly introduced liposuction technique aims to provide an advanced treatment option for individuals suffering from lipedema, offering improved quality of life and body contouring results.

Lipedema, unfortunately, lacks a cure, but many women find relief through lymph-sparing liposuction. Pacific Rejuvenation Médical is among the few practices in the country that specializes in this intricate procedure, catering to the unique needs of lipedema patients.

Eddie Santiago, the Manager of Pacific Rejuvenation Médical, stated, "We are one of the few practices in the country that does Lipedema liposuction. Only a handful of plastic surgeons offer this procedure. Our expertise lies in providing a tailored approach to treating lipedema and restoring our patients' confidence."

For those diagnosed with lipedema, comprehensive diagnosis and documentation of its impact on daily activities are crucial. The condition often leads to physical and emotional distress, affecting patients' quality of life. Traditional methods of managing lipedema, such as diet and exercise, often prove ineffective in addressing the disproportionate fat distribution associated with the condition.

Pacific Rejuvenation Médical's pioneering liposuction technique employs cutting-edge technology and a meticulous approach to achieve optimal outcomes. Unlike conventional liposuction methods, this technique minimizes trauma to surrounding tissues, resulting in reduced bruising, swelling, and post-operative discomfort. The advanced approach enables skilled surgeons to precisely target and remove excess fat cells, leading to a more balanced and harmonious body contour.

Committed to providing comprehensive care, Pacific Rejuvenation Médical's expert medical team is dedicated to educating patients about lipedema's underlying causes and available treatment options. Each treatment plan is personalized to address the unique needs of every individual, ensuring a supportive and empathetic environment throughout the liposuction journey.

With the introduction of this groundbreaking liposuction technique, Pacific Rejuvenation Médical aims to transform the lives of countless individuals affected by lipedema. By offering a safe and effective solution, the practice strives to restore patients' confidence and enhance their quality of life, enabling them to lead more active and fulfilling lives.
