I got so caught up reading that hours passed before I set the book down and came up for a breather”

Book review blogger Liliyana Shadowlyn who writes about fantasy and normally does not review thrillers, said, "I gave this a 5 out of 5. I don't think I can truly do this book justice. I remember where I was when the towers fell on Sept 11 – and how surreal it felt. Grogan did an amazing job of bringing the story to life around the reader, with evocative imagery and provoking an emotional response right from the opening chapter. I got so caught up reading that hours passed before I set the book down and came up for a breather.”

Author Grogan has been pleased with the initial response, but states: “The underlying themes need recognition, a debate, even a movement to see the concerns I raise. The story seems to be American Culture versus the War on Terrorism, and who might prevail. It has the political action of Tom Clancy and Brad Thor with a little bit of Clive Cussler swashbuckling adventure humor thrown in and garnished with the messiness of romance relationships and reality television ratings. I challenge all: just finish reading before offering judgment. It is entertainment with a message.”

Author Grogan will be at a book signing event at Barnes and Noble Northwest in Las Vegas, NV on September 9th, noon – 3 pm. And at Barnes & Noble Naperville, IL, on September 16, noon- 3 pm.
