What are the Factors Hampering the Global Cosmetic Implants Market?

Despite the growing popularity of cosmetic implants, various factors are likely to pose a threat to the growth of the cosmetic implants market during the forecast period. The high cost of cosmetic implants and the threat of malfunctioning are some of the prominent factors anticipated to hinder the market's growth during the forecast period.

Also, high chances of surgical complications, increasing cost of cosmetic surgeries, adverse effects of cosmetic surgery, and lack of proper healthcare facilities across some developing economies are projected to harm the growth of the Cosmetic Implants Market over the forecast period. Lack of awareness of the operational effectiveness and other benefits of the technologically advanced implant systems restrains the growth of the market.
