

Health 2.0 Conference's Panelists To Review Legit Techniques For Preventing Telemedicine Scams

The conference aims to address the increasing challenge of telemedicine scams by focusing on essential preventative actions.

DUBAI, DUBAI, UAE, September 8, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- While telemedicine has brought about an innovative improvement in healthcare accessibility, it has also become a magnet for deceitful schemes targeting the vulnerabilities of virtual healthcare systems. Responding to the growing danger posed by these fraudulent activities, the Health 2.0 Conference will focus on this challenge during its forthcoming edition at the InterContinental in Dubai Festival City.

The Health 2.0 Conference, set to take place on Feb 20–22, 2024, will shed light on telemedicine scams, ensuring trust and security for patients and healthcare providers. The health summit promises to be a comprehensive exploration of the future of healthcare. Attendees can expect enlightening keynotes, in-depth panel discussions, and interactive sessions that focus on the transformative potential of modern healthcare.

Technology integration into healthcare is becoming increasingly seamless as the health industry transforms. However, the emerging issue of telemedicine scams within virtual healthcare is overshadowing this progress. Keeping this in mind, a panel of experts will collaborate to explore innovative approaches to protect patients and healthcare providers from the escalating threats posed by fraudulent activities and unsolicited communication in telemedicine.

"In an era where telemedicine is transforming the healthcare landscape, it's our responsibility to confront the challenges that come with it," said Tanmay Kumar, the Manager of Health 2.0 Conference. "Our special session on fraud in telemedicine will provide a platform to share insights, best practices, and strategies to counter fraudulent activities effectively. By promoting collaboration and knowledge-sharing, we aim to create a safer environment for all."

In addition to addressing the issue of telemedicine fraud, the conference will cover a wide array of topics, including the latest trends in healthcare innovation and promoting overall wellness. Offering networking opportunities, the conference will also feature an expansive exhibiting area where major companies, startups, and MedTech entrepreneurs will showcase their products and solutions.
