The program for the Forum will cover a wide range of hot topics, including:

The future of work in the age of AI: How will the AI revolution test human resilience and, by responding creatively, can we emerge more resilient than before?

Management has been slow to evolve from its industrial-age roots. What will it take to turn it into the powerful, value-creating force the 21st century needs?

Some people recover faster after setbacks. Is this due to mindset or muscle? Resources or relationships? Grace or grit? Crucially, can the answers be learned?

Creative workers and artists have setbacks too. What works for them – and could it work for
