

Microban International and Technoform launch RuggedTub® utility sink with built-in antimicrobial product protection

UNITED KINGDOM, September 11, 2023

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Microban

International and Technoform Industries Ltd have partnered to create the innovative RuggedTub® utility sink with integrated antimicrobial product protection. This collaboration combines Technoform's utility sinks – renowned for their durability and practicality – with Microban® antimicrobial technologies to create utility sinks that provide enhanced protection against microbes for greater cleanliness and peace of mind.

RuggedTub utility sinks are constructed from high density polypropylene, and are designed to withstand domestic, commercial and industrial use. With four models and three colors available, these sinks seamlessly blend into any environment, and now benefit from Microban's built-in antimicrobial technology to stay cleaner for longer. Richard Kenney, Director of Business Development at Microban International, commented: "Microban is proud to partner with Technoform Industries, delivering a solution that addresses end-user concerns about microbial growth. By integrating our market-leading antimicrobial technology, RuggedTub utility sinks now provide a durable and cleaner solution that caters to the needs of various settings, including laundry rooms, garages, mudrooms, construction sites, factories, retail stores and more."

Richard Davidson, President at Technoform Industries, highlighted the benefits of the collaboration: "The incorporation of Microban's antimicrobial technology elevates our utility sink offering, meeting the demands of consumers seeking a reliable solution with enhanced cleanliness. RuggedTub utility sinks perfectly align with evolving preferences for both stylish and functional spaces. Users can now enjoy the convenience and durability that our sinks offer with the added benefit of around-the-clock antimicrobial product protection."
