Jane Bondar's speech

A highlight of NIX's presence is a session by Jane Bondar, Mobile Development Lead at NIX, titled 'Sustainable Mobile Software: How to Create One?' Jane will explore the importance of sustainable mobile software, emphasizing its potential impact across various industries.

Sustainable mobile software is not just an ethical choice; it's a strategic imperative for industries across the board.”

Jane Bondar, Mobile Development Lead at NIX

"Sustainable mobile software is not just an ethical choice; it's a strategic imperative for industries across the board," says Jane Bondar. "As the use of cloud computing, data centers, and electronic devices continues to surge, our energy consumption and carbon emissions have soared over the past three decades. Sustainable software development holds the key to reducing this impact by eliminating needless software bloat and resource-intensive functionality."

During Jane Bondar's session, attendees will gain actionable techniques to make mobile apps energy-efficient and environmentally conscious, all while ensuring a positive user experience. Real-world cases from NIX's practice will illustrate the practical application of sustainable software principles.

NIX's commitment to progress in the mobile industry is unwavering. They invite valued clients, partners, and fellow enthusiasts to join them at MWC Las Vegas 2023 to explore the boundless opportunities of sustainable mobile software.
