

Georgia Manufacturing Alliance, TransGlobal Events to host the 2nd Annual Greener Manufacturing Show in Atlanta in Oct

Show's unique environment combines the expo and conference experiences for benefit of attendees

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, UNITED STATES, September 11, 2023 / EINPresswire.com/ -- The Greener Manufacturing Show, coming to Atlanta Oct. 11 and 12, blends both conference and expo environments, allowing attendees to participate in educational sessions, as well as hear real, tangible advice and experience from Manufacturing's top solution providers.

This is the only event in North America that focuses on answering the tough questions while showcasing solution providers who understand the specific needs of manufacturing industry leaders.”

Jason Moss

The Greener Manufacturing Show is North America's must-attend event for any sustainability-focused company looking to design and manufacture products from more sustainable materials, limit and eliminate the use of toxic chemicals, and reduce the impact of industrial and manufacturing processes on the environment. Attendees will source the latest technologies and solutions, and find new partners to help achieve sustainability targets.

Jason Moss, Founder and CEO of Georgia Manufacturing Alliance, says, “Manufacturing executives have tons of new regulations and requirements they must understand as they relate to sustainable manufacturing.” He added, “This is the only event in North America that focuses on answering the tough questions while showcasing solution providers who understand the specific needs of manufacturing industry leaders.”

Moss will moderate a panel discussion with a several key figures in Georgia's sustainable manufacturing ecosystem.

“One of the thought leaders sharing the stage on Oct. 12 during the ‘Georgia Green Manufacturing’ panel discussion is Scott Moskowitz,” Moss said. Moskowitz is the Senior Director of Market Strategy and Industry Relations for Qcells North America, where he contributes to the company’s public affairs and business development efforts. He also sits on the boards of the Solar Energy Industries Association and Georgia Solar Energy Association, advocating for policies to grow the solar industry at large and support domestic manufacturing.
