Definition:

Maternity innerwear refers to specialized undergarments designed to provide comfort and support to pregnant women during various stages of pregnancy and postpartum. These garments are designed to accommodate the changing shape of a woman's body and provide additional support where needed. Maternity innerwear is intended to promote comfort, alleviate discomfort, and adapt to the unique needs of pregnant and breastfeeding women. It's important for pregnant and breastfeeding women to choose maternity innerwear that provides the necessary support and comfort for their individual needs. Properly fitting and supportive maternity innerwear can contribute to a more comfortable pregnancy experience and facilitate breastfeeding for new mothers.
