Tyson Stargel, Co-President of Stargel Office Solutions, confirmed that their company acquired the 24-year old business, owned by David and Norma Dillard, as of September 8, 2023. The sale price was not disclosed. Stargel Office Solutions will continue to operate under the company's present name, Round Rock Copier, and will also temporarily occupy the Round Rock Copier location at 1101 Egger Avenue, Round Rock, TX.

This is the first acquisition for Stargel Office Solutions, which has been serving the Houston market since its inception in 1987. Part of the company's growth strategy includes expansion into new markets. Even from their headquarters in Houston, Stargel Office Solutions has sold equipment to a number of clients in the Austin area. Currently, one of the company's larger clients is opening a new location in the Austin market. Tyson Stargel commented, "This is the right time for us to have a stronger presence in the Austin market. When we met with the Dillards and learned they were interested in selling their company, we were able to reach an agreement that was beneficial for everyone."

Slade Stargel, Co-President of Stargel Office Solutions, commented, "This acquisition gives us the ability not only to sell into this new market but affirms our commitment to developing long-lasting client partnerships, and provide exceptional service with more capabilities to offer. We have plans to expand the technical support team in the near future, and then add an account executive.” Stargel Office Solutions has plans to relocate their new company to an office in Austin within the next few months.

Slade added, “We are very pleased to expand into the greater Austin area and look forward to building upon the good work that the Dillard family has done over the last two decades. They have established a strong company and enjoy a great reputation in the industry. We wish them the very best in their new endeavor and thank them for the chance to carry on the Round Rock Copier name and brand.”
