

Las Cazuelas Restaurant Returns to Full Operations After Years of Adversity

Las Cazuelas resume full operation after challenges, including owner's COVID-19 battle and loss of father. New chapter for this beloved Highland Park eatery.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, USA,

EINPresswire.com/ -- March 15, 2020, was a momentous day that shook the restaurant industry, including Las Cazuelas Restaurant. Owner Carlos Lopez didn't just face a business shutdown but also battled personal trials, such as a COVID-19 hospitalization and the devastating loss of his father to the virus.

Today is a red-letter day as Las Cazuelas Restaurant resumes its regular operating schedule in Highland Park, offering full service once again after years of restricted hours, limited seating, and pared-down table service due to staffing and other challenges.

The starting point of all achievement is desire.”
Napoleon Hill

"This is a monumental day for both myself and Las Cazuelas. After overcoming personal losses and health challenges, not to mention the countless obstacles faced by the restaurant, it feels incredible to be back to full operation," said Carlos Lopez. "I owe so much to our dedicated patrons. Your unwavering support has made today possible."

This milestone is not just a return to regular business; it marks a pivotal turn for this cherished family establishment.

It's a testament to the resilience, unity, and indomitable spirit of the Las Cazuelas team and the community that has buoyed them through challenging times.

"We've gone through many trials, but each one has made us stronger. I believe that today marks the beginning of a new and hopeful chapter for Las Cazuelas. We invite everyone to join us in this celebration of resilience," added Lopez.

We extend a heartfelt invitation to all of our patrons, new and old, to come in and be part of this significant moment.

Let's celebrate the unity, love, and food that bind us all.
