From the diverse experiences of a former Marine, Rogue American Apparel (RAA) is proud to reveal its latest collection of military-inspired clothing. This line is crafted specifically for the discerning tastes of the elite Military, High Threat Security Professionals, Law Enforcement, and Extreme Sports communities.

Having honorably served in the Marines for six years, Founder and CEO Wes Whitlock's firsthand experience lends unmatched authenticity to RAA's military-inspired clothing lines. The company, rooted in Austin, Texas, integrates Wes's unique blend of military discipline with a deep appreciation for diverse cultures, especially Italy, where he lived and studied.

"I wanted to cultivate and create a brand of substance and value," says Wes. "RAA is for the underdog, the fighter in life who walks their own path. It's a brand that captures the essence of military-inspired clothing, resonating with those who've faced battles on and off the field. It reminds you of your purpose and responsibility to pick up the shield you dropped."

The Lambda (Spartan Shield), chosen as the brand logo, symbolizes the commitment, strength, and unity that RAA stands for. Beyond fashion, RAA's commitment to community service is commendable. The brand has generously donated to several foundations, reflecting its deep-rooted values of giving back.
