The full remodeling of a mixed-use building in Burbank, Illinois, is a testament to his skills as a builder and his eye for design. The space is versatile, with areas intended for retail, office, and residential use, and currently, the five small local businesses that occupy the property couldn't be happier with the finished product. This space will undoubtedly stimulate economic growth, serving as a hub for small businesses in the area. Ali Ata has outdone himself again by breathing new life into this building and creating a beautiful new spot in the community.

The transformation of this building is impressive. The remodeling process was carefully planned and executed, resulting in upgraded residential units with brand-new kitchens and bathrooms and remodeled bedrooms.

Even the commercial units received a facelift with new glass windows and doors. The most noticeable change, however, is the stunning new stone corner tower that stands tall and proud. With these well-planned changes, the building has been given new life and has become a source of pride for its residents and the community.
