Donald Hallback

“We've got everything we need, we just need each other. Our combined natural and human resources are valued at over $100 trillion, so when we remove the legacy of division that was left by colonialism and enslavement, we'll usher in an era of self-sufficiency. Which will take us from being among the world's poorest, to having the influence of organizations like the UN, IMF and other international institutions that demand respect,” says Donald Hallback, founder of African United.

“It's our chance to reshape an outdated world financial system, which is a relic of the past, and create a sustainable world where all nations, regardless of history, can trade fairly and equitably,” adds Hallback.

African United is extending a heartfelt invitation to the global community of people of African descent, from family members and community leaders, to government officials and spiritual leaders, to join in for this historic gathering. This event holds the key to a vision shared by our ancestors for us to come together as one, as stewards for a better future for us all.

The Descendants of Africa Family Reunion is being held in celebration of Black History Month in the United States to pay tribute to enslaved Africans and those who have come before us.

"I have roots in Beallsville, Florida, which was founded by enslaved Africans who were freed. And my ancestors restructured the local financial system without external assistance, which fostered cooperation and equality. It was my father's dream to share this method worldwide, so I'm continuing this legacy through this reunion and the initiatives that come from it," explains Hallback.

The Descendants of Africa Family Reunion will take place online at 8 a.m. EST. Which is at 7 a.m. EST in Kingston, 12 p.m. GMT in Accra, 2 p.m. SAST in Cape Town and 3 p.m. EAT in Dodoma.
