Erectile Dysfunction \(ED\)

All men may experience an occasional lapse of sexual function at some point in their lives, however, erectile dysfunction is diagnosed when a man is consistently unable to achieve and maintain an erection that allows for satisfactory sexual function. ED is the recurring inability to achieve an adequate erection, despite being sexually aroused. Help and treatment are available for men at all stages of their lives at Precision Men's Sexual Health Clinic Calgary. Declining erectile function is treatable with options ranging from low-intensity shockwave therapy, injection therapy, and Trimix treatment and counseling with a certified sex therapist.

Premature Ejaculation

Irrespective of age, premature ejaculation affects 1 in 5 men. Because premature ejaculation involves a complex interaction of psychological and biological factors, a wide variety of treatment options are available. These include topical and oral medications, as well as the surgical option of penile frenulectomy, and psychosexual and behavioral therapies through our certified sex therapist.

Peyronie's Disease

Treatment plans for Peyronie's disease, which is an acquired penile curvature, include therapies such as intralesional injections (PRP, Pentoxifylline, Verapamil), topical and oral medications, low-intensity shockwave therapy, surgical options, traction devices, and lifestyle modification.

Frenulum Breve

The frenulum is a band of tissue located under the glans of the penis. When the frenulum is too short, this is called a frenulum breve. This condition can result in tension on the frenulum during erections, which can cause it to rip and tear during sexual activities, causing pain and bleeding. A tight frenulum may also contribute to premature ejaculation and the loss of erections.

Appointments at our clinic are available quickly. Please contact the clinic directly to book a consultation, or for more information.
