“I believe that protecting our children is one of the most critical responsibilities we have as a society. Every child deserves to grow up in a safe and nurturing environment, free from the threat of abuse,” explained gala co-chair Ana Megrelishvili. “By being part of Saprea, I have the opportunity to actively contribute to this essential cause. I am driven by the conviction that our collective efforts can make a significant difference in raising awareness, advocating for policy changes, and providing support to survivors.”

Megrelishvili's passion for making a positive impact on the world has taken her on the path of supporting Saprea as the gala committee co-chair. As a thriving adult survivor of childhood abuse, Ana is making efforts to educate people about Saprea's mission and spread a message of hope to people she encounters who also went through similar experiences.

Cathryn Marshall is excited to join the global mission to liberate society from child sexual abuse as a co-chair for this year's Saprea Gala. She has a personal mission to change lives by helping people create optimal mental health, physical health, and a balanced life.

As a successful entrepreneur and leader, Marshall uses her background in networking to connect individuals, businesses, and nonprofits with Saprea.
