Definition:

Facial skincare products are a vital part of many people's daily routines, designed to help cleanse, moisturize, protect, and improve the overall health and appearance of the skin on the face. There is a wide range of facial skincare products available on the market, each with its specific purpose and ingredients. When building a skincare routine, it's essential to consider your skin type (e.g., oily, dry, sensitive, combination) and specific skincare concerns. Consulting with a dermatologist or skincare professional can help you determine the best products for your needs. Additionally, it's crucial to patch-test new products to avoid potential allergic reactions or irritation, especially if you have sensitive skin.
