Idris Demirci, founder of Able Autism Therapy

Founded in 2021, Able Autism Therapy has quickly become a trusted name in the field of Autism therapy. Thanks to its staggering growth, the brand has quickly expanded to its current three locations as well as launched a franchise opportunity to aid in expansion. In addition to the new Duluth facility, Able Autism Therapy can also be found in Knoxville, Tennessee as an in-home therapy provider, and in Alpharetta, Georgia.

Currently, the company has its sights set on opening more locations throughout Georgia and Tennessee, with a goal to expand into South Carolina in the near future. The franchise model is helping this expansion happen as new interest pours in for ownership.

"We are very excited to see Able Autism Therapy grow as we continue to strive to meet the needs of children and families in our communities. Franchisees are going to find a well-established business with all of the processes, systems, and support in place to help their location grow," said Idris Demirci, founder of Able Autism Therapy.

Demirci went on to point out that franchise partners are able to make a difference within their community with his team's support at their side each step of the way.

As such, I can help foresee issues that may arise and help our franchise partners be proactive in their problem-solving," stated Demirci. "We highly value our patients' satisfaction and want to ensure our franchisees are set up for that same successful patient service that our first three locations have experienced, ultimately producing a healthier organization and network of franchisees."
