regional events in the country. The Summit features dynamic Keynote speakers Ira Winkler, Field CISO for CYE Security | Former Chief Security Architect at Walmart | Author of "You Can Stop Stupid" & "Security Awareness for Dummies"; David Spark, Founder, Producer, Co-Host CISO Series | Founder & Marketing VP of Spark Media Solutions, LLC; Joshua Scott, Head of Information Security & IT at Postman; and John Underwood, VP, Information Security at Big 5 Sporting Goods.

> ISSA LA Summit was really awesome! I learned so much that I can use all the knowledge immediately at work! I also feel this is the security conference that I really fit in - being a woman in security."
> Mary Wang, Information Assurance Engineer at Northrop Grumman Corporation

Throughout the day, Summit attendees will be able to choose from two tracks, a Women in Security Forum, and a Challenge room, where attendees can learn about the latest techniques to combat common threats in this hands-on workshop. The venue is clearly one of the top experiences for Summit attendees, the Annenberg Beach House, located right on the shore of the Pacific Ocean. The fresh beach air will keep the crowd happy and refreshed!

Other well-known speakers include: Jim Manico, Founder, CEO and Application Security Educator at Manicode Security; Richard Greenberg

ISSA-LA President & Founder of the Women in Security Forum | CEO at Security Advisors LLC | ISSA Distinguished Fellow & Hall of Fame; Sascha Scleumer, CISO, LA County Public Health; Howard Miller, Chief Information Officer at UCLA Anderson School of Management | Clear Ventures CxO Council Advisor | Board Member at Innovate@UCLA; and Tina Thorstenson, VP, Industry Business Unit at CrowdStrike | Former CISO and Deputy CIO at Arizona State University.

There will be an Opening Reception on the late afternoon of Oct 4th, where attendees can watch the sunset over the Pacific Ocean will networking and having food and drinks. Earlier in the day will be the CISO Forum, open to CISOs, CIOs, and Directors of Security. Those interested in attending should send an email to: admin@issa-la.org.
