The Conference has also partnered with the Period Project, a non-profit organization that facilitates better access to menstrual hygiene products to individuals in need; advocate for equal and tax-free access to these essential products; and raise awareness of period poverty by leveraging voices around the country. Attendees of the conference are asked to bring a donated package of tampons or pads in exchange for their conference swag bag.

This event will also shine a light on the Renaissance Women's Summit's upcoming third annual gathering, set to take place on February 24th, 2024, in Nashville, TN in partnership with The Wond'ry, Vanderbilt University's Center for Innovation.
