David Coleman, President of Coleman Jet Solutions, delivered an insightful and educational presentation on the management and sale of private aircraft to the conference attendees.

Working with banks and trusts is always educational. Their expertise with an array of assets offers a fresh perspective on how issues are handled and prepares us to react efficiently in the future.”

David Coleman, President of Coleman Jet Solutions

The National Trust Closely Held Business Association (NTCHBA) Annual Conference provides individuals within the corporate fiduciary, trust, and estate industries an educational and resourceful platform to communicate with other professionals.

With his extensive knowledge in the aviation industry and numerous collaborations with institutions for aircraft repossession and disposal, David Coleman provided a comprehensive overview of the obstacles banks and trusts might encounter when dealing with aircraft in their portfolio.

“Working with banks and trusts is always educational. Their expertise with a wide array of assets offers a fresh perspective on how issues are handled and prepares us to react more efficiently in the future.”

David Coleman also said, “we are grateful for the opportunity to present in front of members of the National Trust Closely Held Business Association. It demonstrates our commitment to assist corporate fiduciary, trust, and estate industries with any aviation matters.”
