

RemotelyMe Honored as a Most Fundable Company by Pepperdine Graziadio Business School

RemotelyMe touts visual #neuroscience and cognitive #AI #software to win #Pepperdine Silver award as a Top 12 Most Fundable Company out of 3,000 Startups.

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, October 2, 2023

/EINPresswire.com/ -- RemotelyMe was selected as a Silver winner by the Pepperdine Graziadio Business School for the sixth annual Most Fundable Companies® List. RemotelyMe competed against over 3,000 early-stage companies in the U.S. to be named one of sixteen companies total, and one of only five Silver level winners. RemotelyMe delivered a five-minute investment presentation at a formal event at the Pepperdine campus in Malibu, California, on September 28, 2023. The event video is available at this link.

RemotelyMe is a veteran-owned business that uniquely solves the world's number one workplace problem with visual neuroscience and cognitive artificial intelligence (AI). According to research from Gallup and other analysts, low trust and high stress is costing global firms almost $9 trillion annually. Nearly 80 percent of workers don't trust employers, resulting in 77 percent disengagement. RemotelyMe helps Human Resources and recruiting professionals address these issues with patent-pending alternatives to outdated candidate assessments, employee engagement surveys, and learning and development platforms.

"Deloitte says high trust firms can drive 400 percent more business performance and 79 percent more productivity," said Bill Reed, RemotelyMe's chief marketing officer and co-founder. "The Pepperdine team, consisting of renowned business and investment experts, completed months-long due diligence on a par with leading venture capital firms. Using proprietary data-driven analysis, Pepperdine selected RemotelyMe as a Silver winner, placing us in the top one percent of 3,000 startups reviewed. RemotelyMe plans to close our Seed round in early 2024, and recognition as a Most Fundable Company in 2023 will greatly improve our success.”

Pepperdine due diligence experts reviewed RemotelyMe’s team, market, solutions, customer traction, intellectual property, financials, and Board Advisors—which include CxOs from Southwest Airlines, Royal Caribbean, ADT, Walmart, Udemy, Highspot, and Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate. RemotelyMe’s PDQAPP extracts data from LinkedIn profiles and uses cognitive AI and neuroscience to pre-assess and score for specific soft skills needed for job success. RemotelyMe’s candidate assessment uses visual neuroscience that takes nine minutes, achieves a 93 percent Cronbach’s Alpha validity, and a 97 percent completion rate. In comparison, text-based tests—many invented decades ago—often take forty-five minutes, have a 30 percent completion rate, and 50 percent validity.

“Neuroscience confirms that text and numbers only access your logical neocortex, which is responsible for only ten percent of your decision-making,” says Dr. German Fresco, a PhD neuroscientist and RemotelyMe’s chief science officer. “RemotelyMe’s visual neuroscience evaluative storytelling, or ViNES, accesses one hundred percent of your decision-making brain to achieve industry-leading validity while determining soft skills and trust factors.”

As a winner on the Most Fundable Companies List, RemotelyMe will be profiled on Entrepreneur.com and will be featured in the December 2023 print issue. For a complete list of winners, visit www.pepperdine.edu/mfc-list.
