Leading the selection is the Betta fish, a resilient and solitary species, known for its vibrant hues and patterns and aggressive nature, making it suitable as the lone inhabitant of a tank. Neon Tetras are highlighted as an ideal pick for beginners due to their low-maintenance, peaceful demeanor, and disease resistance, offering a dazzling display of color when in a group.

For enthusiasts desiring a lush, planted aquarium, Harlequin Rasboras are recommended for their distinctive appearance and adaptability to various foods and environments, adding a splash of color to densely planted tanks.

The guide also provides suggestions for stocking combinations for a 10-gallon aquarium, including community and species tank mixes, such as pairing five Neon Tetras with one Dwarf Gourami, known for its delicate nature and striking orange and blue markings.

Fishkeeping Wisdom, founded by Brett, a seasoned fishkeeper with nearly twenty years of experience, aims to deliver informative guides on aquarium equipment and the proper care of aquatic pets.
