strengthening cross-border engagements thus contributing to the overall growth of India, GCC, and African nations.

Accepting the award Nanda said “I am honored to receive this recognition from AllianceIndus. Given the current geopolitical situations ensuring an efficient cross border collaboration has become even more pertinent and I continue to remain a strong advocate of fortifying cross-border trade relationships, particularly within the vibrant corridor between the global north and the global south”.

Nanda is an accomplished global leader in the energy & infrastructure industry. Prior to establishing DataVolt, he has held several leadership positions at ACWA Power and Engie, driving growth across several emerging markets, including the Middle East, Africa and Asia. Through these leadership roles spanning over two decades, Nanda has been a key catalyst in fostering the strong cross border relationships between the US and the emerging markets to ensure adoption of latest technologies and know-how, thus contributing to sustained economic growth in such regions. In his latest role as CEO of DataVolt, Nanda hopes to continue to further leverage the technological prowess of Silicon Valley and the broader US ecosystem to develop future-ready, sustainable and scalable digital ecosystems across the key growth markets of GCC, African and Asia.
