image of the San Jose police badge in dichroic glass mounted in a steel frame on a concrete plinth. The artwork includes individual plaques to recognize each officer around the base of the memorial, with space for adding future tributes.

“It was important that this artwork provide an accessible and welcoming space where police officers and police personnel, family members, and the community can honor the sacrifice made by fallen officers,” said Huether. “The ‘End of Watch’ is also a reminder of the ever-present risks associated with law enforcement and is a place for honoring them, and for memorializing our collective appreciation, sympathy and grief if other deaths occur in the future.” (see "End of Watch" Project Page here)

Along with remarks from Mayor Mahan, Chief Mata and others, the event included laying of flowers of commemoration, an honor guard with reading of each fallen officer's name, and bagpipes playing "Amazing Grace."
