Audra Funk joins the firm as a senior attorney and opens the firm's new Ohio office. She comes to Barron & Newburger with substantial experience as General Counsel and Chief Compliance Officer with a national collection agency. In that role, she guided her client in establishing appropriate policies, responding to regulatory concerns and in ensuring that sensitive consumer data is protected.

"Adding Mark and Audra brings significant experience Barron & Newburger's clients, furthering our mission of providing practical legal advice in both business practices and litigation," according to Manny Newburger, the co-founder and a shareholder in Barron & Newburger. "Mark gives us expertise in protecting businesses from the horrible consequences of data breaches. Audra expands our team of attorneys with operational experience who understand the compliance deeds and burdens of debt collection businesses."

“Joining Barron & Newburger presents me with an opportunity to provide a broader set of businesses with my counsel and insights”, explained Mr. Smith.

“Barron & Newburger is committed to providing our clients with practical insights into appropriate business and security compliance, said Thomas Good, the Managing Shareholder of Barron & Newburger, “Complying with changing legal requirements and protecting consumer information is of paramount importance in today’s business environment”.

“Joining Barron & Newburger is a wonderful opportunity”, explained Ms. Funk, “ I am excited to advise clients relating to the compliance challenges which businesses are facing today.”
