This partnership aims to raise awareness and donations for early detection financial support.

The General Manager of Hunt's Services, Joe Krissoff, expressed the company has a goal to raise $10,000 in October, and in week one raised $6000.00 of that goal! "We have the best customers and employees in the area who have really stepped up to make a difference. I could not be any prouder of our team and customers." With staff members who are survivors or have close ties to survivors and fighters, the company believes it is their duty to support and serve the community.

The Carol Milgard Breast Center, a non-profit organization, is dedicated to providing breast health services to all women in the community. Their mission is to offer better access to potentially life-saving mammography services, and they rely on support from individuals and community partners to fund outreach efforts and screening mammograms. Donations received will directly contribute to their financial assistance program, which provides mammograms to uninsured or underinsured women and men who cannot afford annual exams.

Hunt's Services employees will actively participate in raising awareness by wearing pink booties, pink gloves, and pink baseball caps. They will also add pink ribbon magnets to their vehicles and incorporate the breast cancer ribbon into their logo. Even their mascot, Thor, will wear pink, emphasizing their support for breast cancer awareness.

We have the best customers and employees in the area who have really stepped up to make a difference. I could not be any prouder of our team and customers.”
Joe Krissoff, General Manager
