

Utimus and EdTek Services Commit to Supporting Thousands of New Canadians in Overcoming Job Market Hurdles

Utimus and EdTek Services make a significant and forward-looking commitment to directly support newly arrived Canadians with free Soft Skills training.

TORONTO, ON, CANADA, October 17, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Utimus, a military veteran-led organization focused on expanding employment opportunities for new Canadians, and EdTek Services, a provider of LMS for small business and mission-critical LMS Support Services, have made a significant and forward-looking commitment by directly supporting newly arrived Canadians, who often face significant challenges when seeking meaningful and lasting employment.

Utimus: We Empower Employment

"Supporting new Canadians is an investment in all our futures," says Paul Jacobelli, Founder of EdTek. "We know it brings talent and diversity, driving innovation and growth, benefiting our nation as a whole."

EdTek Services is extending its online learning management system, a library of Soft Skills training courses, and its comprehensive LMS support services to anyone registered for training with Utimus. The Soft Skills training courses will be offered at no cost.

This week, more than 270 newly arrived Canadians were granted free access to 340 online courses by registering on the Utimus website. This is part of the support services offered by Utimus to anyone who has arrived in Canada within the last 10 years, regardless of country of origin.

"These training programs demonstrate the profound impact that a little help can have in unlocking the potential within thousands of hardworking newcomers in Canada," says Brian

Macdonald, CEO of Utimus.

This joint initiative will continue to be available to all those who sign up with Utimus.
