

Commercial Lending Market Size to Generate $29,379.83 billion by 2030, growing at a CAGR of 13.1%

NEW CASTLE, DELAWARE, UNITED STATES, October 17, 2023

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Lower interest offered on commercial loans to businesses and enterprises propels growth of the market. In addition, faster processing and sanctioning of loans makes it a very convenient option for businesses to choose. Moreover, commercial lending allows small firms to access substantial sums of money by aggregating all their funding into one loan. This acts as a major factor for the commercial lending market growth.

Allied Market Research recently published a report, titled, "Commercial Lending Market By Type (Unsecured Lending and Secured Lending), Enterprise Size (Large Enterprises and Small & Medium Sized Enterprises), and Provider (Banks and NBFCs): Global Opportunity Analysis and Industry Forecast, 2021–2030". As per the report, the global commercial lending industry was accounted for $8.82 billion in 2020, and is expected to reach $29.37 billion by 2030, growing at a CAGR of 13.1% from 2021 to 2030.

Drivers, Restraints, and Opportunities

Access to large sums of money, shorter loan application processes, and low interest rates have boosted the growth of the global commercial lending market. However, strict qualifying criteria and repayment schedules hinder the market growth. On the contrary, technological developments in commercial lending would open lucrative opportunities in the future.

Covid-19 Scenario

The Covid-19 pandemic has had a remarkable impact on the commercial lending market due to rise in commercial and industrial loans as the majority of the businesses suffered losses. Several banks reported that they are overburdened by the rise in commercial loading during the pandemic as firms continue to seek financing.

The Secured Lending Segment held the Largest Share

By type, the secured lending segment held the largest share in 2020, accounting for nearly three-fifths of the global commercial lending market. In addition, the segment is expected to register the highest CAGR of 14.6% during the forecast period, owing to growth of the real estate industry.

The Large Enterprises Segment Dominated the Market

By enterprise size, the large enterprises segment held the lion's share in 2020, contributing to nearly three-fifths of the global commercial lending market, due to growing need for sophisticated and developed facilities & services for large businesses. However, the small & medium sized enterprises segment is estimated to manifest the highest CAGR of 15.4% from 2021 to 2030, due to rise in a number of entrepreneurs, that aspire to set up a new business or modify and expand a current establishment.

Asia-Pacific, Followed by North America, held the Largest Share

By region, the market across Asia-Pacific, followed by North America, dominated in 2020, holding more than two-fifths of the global commercial lending market. In addition, the region is projected to portray the highest CAGR of 15.1% during the forecast period, owing to government guarantee, rise in number of loan deferrals, and payment holidays.
