More than just providing reliable connectivity, payment terminals with SIM cards enable mobility. This is important for merchants doing business in untraditional locations, like kiosks, food trucks, and community events. A SIM card allows merchants to accept payments anywhere through a dedicated secure mobile connection.

“We are so pleased to add Verizon as one of our trusted partners, enabling fast and secure mobile access for our ISOs and their merchants,” said Mony Zenou, Founder and CEO of iPOS Systems. “It’s all about access to the latest technology at an affordable price. That’s our commitment to our partners.”

Today, customers are spending more money using mobile payments. By 2027, global consumers are expected to spend $6,007 billion per year using mobile payments. Financial analysts expect this figure to more than triple within the next five years.
