“

Starshine Texas has a soaring roof, custom walls with a warm wood interior, plenty of windows, and a large, overhead door that can open up and welcome the outdoors in.”

“Our Building Systems members produce some amazing metal building systems,” notes Bouquot, “and I get to see them when I visit companies across the country. We thought this would be a great opportunity for others to see, in a fun and lighthearted way, some of these great facilities. Additionally, if you have a unique metal building that may be a good place to visit, contact us and we'll see if we can film a future episode there.”

The first video in the new series follows along as Tony pays a visit to Starshine Texas, which includes a 10,000-square-foot metal building sitting on 25 wooded acres in the heart of Houston. “A metal building is an ideal choice for the facility and it showcases the possibilities of this popular building type,” Bouquot says. “It has a soaring roof, open layout that can be modified for various group sizes, custom walls with a warm wood interior, plenty of windows, and a large, overhead door that can open up and welcome the outdoors in.”

Upcoming videos will visit a variety of metal buildings in different settings across the country, and MBMA plans to produce two to three new episodes each year. In addition to “Travels with Tony,” there are more than 30 videos available to view for free at MBMA’s YouTube channel, www.youtube.com/@MBMAMEDIA.
