“Our goal at Innovative Collegiate Consultants, Inc. is to help students who have learning disabilities and those who have the need for tutoring in a specific course,” stated Dr. Tara Williams, owner and founder of Innovative Collegiate Consultants. “By focusing on both their strengths and their weaknesses, we not only build executive functioning skills but self-confidence as well.”

Setting Students up for Success

Unlike traditional tutoring that focuses solely on subject matter, Innovative Collegiate Consultants prioritizes the development of executive functioning skills. This approach aims to cultivate not just academic proficiency but also the essential cognitive tools vital for long-term success.

The strategy at Innovative Collegiate Consultants is personalized, tailoring learning journeys to the individual strengths and challenges of each student. Tutors serve as mentors, guiding students through academia while concurrently enhancing their executive functioning skills. This ensures that students not only grasp complex concepts but also develop the cognitive resilience needed for academic success.

Strategies Backed by Research

The strategic infusion of executive functioning skills into the Innovative Collegiate Consultants tutoring program is supported by extensive research. Studies consistently demonstrate that students with well-honed executive functions exhibit enhanced problem-solving abilities, improved emotional regulation, and stronger interpersonal skills—attributes vital for success in college and beyond.

The impact of this innovative approach is evident in the success stories emerging from Innovative Collegiate Consultants. Students, once challenged by time management, now excel in meeting deadlines. Those struggling with the organization have developed effective strategies. The transformation extends beyond academic achievements, fostering personal growth and resilience.

“We are interested in solutions for our students’ current education issues but also in the skills that will carry them throughout their lifetime,” Dr. Williams explained.

In an era where the demand for higher education is greater than ever, Innovative Collegiate Consultants envisions a future where every student has access to executive functioning-focused learning support. What is Executive Function Disorder?

An executive function is a wide group of mental skills that are used to complete tasks and interact with others. Executive functions enable individuals to focus attention, set goals, plan, remember instructions, and manage multiple tasks.

Executive function disorder is a neurological, mental health, and behavioral issue that often includes depression and ADHD (attention deficit hyperactivity disorder). The condition can affect a person's ability to efficiently function in society and can easily interfere with scholastic endeavors.

Around 90% of all individuals with ADHD struggle with executive function disorder in some form. In the classroom, executive dysfunction can make it difficult to acquire an education because most of the skills that are challenged are ones that are required for formal learning. Now, students with this condition can find relief in Executive Functioning Tutoring services through Innovative Collegiate Consultants.

Executive Functioning Tutoring Entails

Innovative Collegiate Consultants dedicated Executive Functioning Tutoring service begins with a free consultation. During this session, the student's needs and goals are determined. After the meeting, a success specialist, or tutor, is assigned for the semester, matching the personality and teaching/learning styles of the teacher and the student.

Classes are virtual, offering the convenience of scheduling. Weekly online sessions are set up with additional meetings if necessary. Tutors also provide assistance with time management, organization, and weekly course preparation in addition to help with accommodations management.

Top-Notch Tutors Serve as Mentors

The tutors at Innovative Collegiate Consultants are success specialists who have been hired based on their experience working with students on executive functioning skills in their subject of expertise. All tutors possess a bachelor's degree, but most have a master's degree or higher. The utmost consideration is made when pairing a student with a tutor to ensure the highest probability of compatibility on a learning and personal level.
