professionals. These traders automate and integrate their strategies through an API to trade assets in multiple markets with speed, efficiency, and technology that offers the following benefits:

- Advanced architectural design
- Unparalleled versatility
- Scalability and personalization
- High-speed throughput
- Position monitoring and risk surveillance
- Trading access infrastructure

“We are proud to bring automated API trading to our client base. By partnering with Atreyu, we will eliminate the operational overhead that has prevented a large segment of traders from implementing institutional-level automation,” said Tom Gibb, Co-President and COO of Lightspeed.

Lightspeed will be the only broker-dealer allowing retail traders to connect to Atreyu's infrastructure through simplified and easy-to-code APIs. This is especially beneficial to the individual or non-professional trader by reducing the need for developers. Traders will be able to host, manage, and scale messaging with an easy-to-set-up and use messaging API. This API will be available to retail and professional traders later this year.
