

From Despair to Joy: A Grandmother's Journey to Sobriety

Serenity Vista Helps Senior Women Overcome Problem Drinking

BOQUETE, CHIRIQUI, PANAMA, October 24, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Meet Sarah

“Sarah” is a 52-year-old professional woman from the Midwest, whose life appeared picture-perfect on the outside, but concealed a hidden struggle within. Slowly, she found herself increasing her wine consumption as a means to cope with underlying despair. However, the façade of looking good shattered as her drinking spiraled out of control.

When grandma's drinking becomes a problem

The best gift you can give your loved ones is a healthy you. If alcohol is a problem, that means getting proven, compassionate, holistic treatment to be your very best for your loved ones.”

John Derry, Director, Serenity Vista

As her alcohol use progressed, Sarah's behavior took a dark turn. She started making sloppy mistakes, drunk texting, making phone calls she couldn't remember, and experiencing terrifying blackouts. Her drinking began to affect her job performance, leading to horrifying moments of being drunk on the job.

Everything changed when Sarah's daughter was about to have a baby, making Sarah a grandmother for the first time. The thought of being entrusted with the safety of an infant while battling her addiction filled her with dread and determination. Recognizing the need for help, Sarah made the courageous decision to seek treatment.

The journey to recovery was anything but easy for Sarah. As an independent professional woman, the concept of surrendering control was a significant challenge. However, she persevered with inner resolve, determined to break free from the grip of alcohol addiction.

During treatment, Sarah embraced the assignments and actively engaged in 12-step meetings, finding strength and support in the recovery community. As she progressed through her sobriety journey, she discovered a rekindled passion for creativity, expressing herself through painting and crafts.

Today, 65 days post-treatment, Sarah radiates happiness. In a heartwarming photo, she holds her new grandbaby with a massive smile. Sarah's transformation exemplifies the power of resilience and the beauty that awaits when one chooses the path of recovery.

Her story serves as a beacon of hope, encouraging others to seek help, find their inner strength, and embrace the gift of sobriety, paving the way for a brighter and more fulfilling future.

If Sarah's story resonates with you or your family, consider the same direction she took. A luxury, very private, compassionate, holistic treatment retreat that treats each individual with dignity, respect and compassion. To help Grandma return to the wonderful, kind, nurturing grandmother and mother within the family system.

What Are the Addiction Challenges Facing Seniors?

Seniors have all the same challenges that anyone has when it comes to treatment (withdrawal, craving, relapse, and more), and a few unique challenges. It can often be harder to tell drug abuse from simple drug usage. Because many seniors take a large variety of prescription pills, sometimes with alcohol too, it can be difficult to say when the line has been crossed. But the number one warning sign is to check if the drug use or drinking is interfering with the senior's life. The other major warning sign is when a senior begins taking medication for reasons other than the ones they were prescribed for.
