

Brazilian cinema is celebrated in the heart of Los Angeles this Monday, 23rd, with the opening of the LABRFF

The Los Angeles Brazilian Film Festival was graced with the presence of Sophia Milos, Peter Allas, Sophie Charlotte, Daniel de Oliveira & Gabriel Braga Nunes

LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, October 25, 2023

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The Los Angeles Brazilian Film Festival hosted its sixteenth edition this Monday, October 23rd, with the international premiere of the film Red Monet, directed by Halder Gomes. The opening night included a cocktail reception for filmmakers and artists. Among the 300 people present were Italian actress Sophia Milos, the American Peter Allas, and the Brazilian actors Sophie Charlotte, Peter Allas, Daniel de Oliveira and Gabriel Braga Nunes. The festival celebrates another edition with a fine selection of films and renowned names in entertainment sponsored by AG Immigration and Jamm Cigar.

The Culver Theatre, in Culver City, CA, was filled with the joy of Brazilians living in Los Angeles and those who had the opportunity to fly to the United States to honor their films at the festival. LABRFF's founder, Meire Fernandes, is very proud of the solid and prominent path the festival is taking. "The [LABRFF] fights hard to resist, today we have the greatest films in Brazil with us, a very good and important lineup," says Meire and adds that the festival intends to continue fighting for Brazilian cinema and do what they do best collectively.

The lawyer Felipe Alexandre, representing AG Immigration, official sponsor for the second year in a row, agreed with the founder's words and added his deep admiration for the artists who fight for their art and for the pursuit of their dreams. On Wednesday the 25th, Alexandre will host a panel on immigration and Hollywood open to all festival attendees, for more information visit www.labrff.com.
