Kristen shared, "I am honored to be the keynote speaker and to talk about the importance of social good for world peace. Social good is something that everybody can be a part of. That's why it's so great. Diversity and inclusion is a must in today's world. Why not share the principles of social good and grow the movement? Social good challenges humanity to think in ways that benefit all of humanity. That's why I love it. Everybody can be a part of creating a world where we focus on how to have good nutrition, clean environments, shared best practices on how to be strong, and understanding the ways to financial success. That's why I am so excited to teach about how Buddytown, an application available on Apple and Android is connecting people for social good."

Buddytown was created to bring visibility to the various resources available to be successful. Buddytown CEO, Kristen shared more, "I always hear people mention access as a deterrent to being able to achieve one's goals. My answer is Buddytown. We have many standardized government resources, private resources, and more listed. If people take the effort for themselves they can build more confidence to achieve. I have also designed some different interactive exercises or Social Good Games for youth and adults to participate in. The "Send a Smile" campaign is the latest social good campaign meant to raise the vibe for humanity by encouraging others to take action to inspire others to smile. This is just one way we can take steps for peace and unity in our world. By influencing more parents to take new steps to engage their children with the "Send a Smile" social good games we can make stronger our children and families by helping them practice core values of LOVE and kindness.

“

Social good is for everybody. Today this concept of thinking about how to generate positive outcomes is the emotional and mental shift needed in a complex traumatic world.”
