Melodie Platform Relunched: Faster & Easier To License Copyright-Safe Music For Content

Melodie today released an update to their existing music search and licensing product, a turbocharged series of upgrades that makes the platform even more powerful, while still remaining user friendly. With built-in copyright and monetisation safety for use of their exclusive library of music across YouTube, Facebook, Instagram, TikTok and any future platform, content creators can easily find and license highquality music for their videos, podcasts, apps, games, live streams and more. There's now even more music to choose from, with an extended library of 25,000+ high-quality songs and stems from awardwinning composers and independent artists, all original and exclusive to Melodie.

Creators can find the perfect tracks in seconds, with AI search, intuitive tags and search exclusions. The new drag-and-drop Playlist Creator makes it fast and easy to curate playlists, while the new 'Mobile First' design makes it simple to search and save on the go. The new "My library" section allows users to store curated playlists, as well as favourite collections and artists; or use the Artist Search Menu to search favourites, or exclude specific artists. Plus, there's now Visible Waveforms for every track, including versions and stems, to identify each track's sections, crescendos, hits and endings.

The new interface is slicker and more intuitive - with AI search tools, search exclusions and hot keys. There's music to discover in every style, for every mood and purpose.

Aly Madhavji of Blockchain Founders Fund commented on the recent updates: "In today's digital landscape, it's paramount to have a platform that seamlessly merges technology and artistry. Melodie's commitment to empowering both content and music creators sets them apart. The enhancements further emphasize Melodie's dedication to innovation, making it a go-to solution for creators worldwide.
