About Lindsey Kustusch:

Lindsey Kustusch, an oil painter now residing in Oregon, has been showcasing her artistic creations in frequent gallery exhibitions nationwide since 2009. Beyond these exhibitions, Lindsey shares her expertise by teaching art classes and workshops. Deeply intrigued by art's transformative power, she believes in its capacity to reshape our perception of the everyday. "A single painting," she says, "can magnify the beauty in ordinary things, letting us see the world through another's eyes. That's the true magic of the brush!" Whether it's urban life's rawness, the myriad wonders of flora and fauna, or any moment in between, art, for Lindsey, offers a renewed lens to view our world. With an unwavering love for animals and a history as an urbanite, Lindsey's mission has been to encapsulate life's moments, employing art to infuse color into her perspectives. This drive, combined with her emotional connection to memories and her admiration for nature – expressed through animal portraits and Plein Air Painting – forms the core essence of her creations.
