Climate Change Forum, a global confab with iterations this past year in Manama - Bahrain, London - UK and Beverly Hills - California, "brings to Dubai an ad hoc group of high-net-worth investors, distinguished planetary preservationists, thought leaders and a future-centric scientific community coalescing into partnerships for positive change. Situated along the banks of the Dubai Water Canal, Habtoor Palace Dubai, LXR Hotels & Resorts is rich in urban amenities and Beaux-Arts architecture. Accommodation is breathtaking, the gardens are manicured magnificence, the Silk Spa, two roof top crystalline pools and a spacious state-of-the-art event space is the ideal setting to focus on the arduous agenda at hand. What both CC-Forum , COP28 and even regional events such as ArtBasil.org in South Florida share in a rich heritage of conscientious connoisseurship and environmental commitment.

Taking the long view, most participants at the CC-Forum and concurrent confabs are examining how homo sapiens went from gathering wild berries and chipping away at arrowheads to 'take out' meals in self driving cars and ordering granite counter tops. Or to paraphrase Chip Colwell in his compelling tome 'So Much Stuff, How Humans discovered Tools, Invented Meaning and Made More of Everything' (Chicago Publishing), "Our special talent is refashioning raw materials from rock into roads and mining quartz for integrated circuits, have humans today defined by their things". With the specter of Artificial Intelligence (AI) we may even be made by our things. The clarion cry at the dual summits in Dubai is, 'Either we change our ways or this unique talent predictably will be our undoing as a species'.
