The innovative concept of a collaborative approach was particularly well received. As an antidote to the "lonely editor," Agility brings users together inside their project, with the ability to work on a layout or component together. Combined with the live preview functionality, the new features wowed the audience of industry partners, agencies and other vendors. The feedback was overwhelmingly positive.

Furthermore, Agility CMS announced its participation in the Small Feature Award competition, a prestigious event celebrating innovative strides in the CMS domain. The company showcased a beta version of their collaboration and preview center, underscoring their commitment to delivering cutting-edge solutions to their esteemed clientele.
