When asks about her inspiration in writing the book and her message to the readers, Karen answers, "I love to see children laugh and smile and hope they enjoy the products of my imagination. The first book was a cute true story. I would tell the story to children often. It was their positive response to the story that inspired me to write the book. Then it was the positive response to 'Molly the mallard duck' that inspired me to write the next two books, 'Joey the little duckling' and 'Joey and Cody, play ball'."

During pandemic, Karen was recorded doing a book reading for the Lakewood Library, so they could continue offering story time to the neighborhood children (Youtube link:
