Making friends isn't easy. Especially for homeschoolers. We want to help kids make friendships that last a lifetime and take those relationships beyond the farm.”

Ray Bell

The Homeschool Social program at Bell Family Farm is a response to the growing need for socialization and community among homeschooling families. With the rise of homeschooling due to the pandemic, many parents have expressed concerns about their children's lack of social interaction. Bell Family Farm aims to bridge this gap by providing a safe and fun environment for kids to socialize and build relationships with their peers.

The program will offer a variety of activities and experiences for kids, including farm tours, animal interactions, and hands-on learning opportunities. The farm's spacious outdoor setting allows for proper social distancing while still providing a fun and engaging experience for the kids. The program will also incorporate educational elements, such as learning about sustainable farming practices and the importance of caring for animals.

"We are thrilled to launch our Homeschool Social program and provide a space for kids to connect and form meaningful relationships," says Sarah Bell, owner of Bell Family Farm. "I understand the importance of socialization for children's overall development. Our program aims to not only provide a fun and educational experience but also foster a sense of community among homeschooling families in Central Florida."

Don't miss out on this exciting opportunity for your child to socialize and learn at Bell Family Farm. Book your child's spot now on the farm's website or by contacting them directly. For more information about the program and other offerings at Bell Family Farm, visit www.bellsminizebu.com.
