Congregation, the largest conservative synagogue in Southeast Florida, today announced the launch of its 2023/2024 Cultural Arts Programming and new season for The Lillian, Philip and Gerry Cooperman Academy for Adult Jewish Learning. Open to the public, B'nai Torah's new Fall-to-Spring programming features a variety of learning opportunities, special programs musical events, and communal activities designed to enrich the intellectual and cultural life of community members. The majority of Cooperman Academy classes are free to B'nai Torah members; non-members are welcome to participate for a nominal one-time fee.

B'nai Torah Congregation is a place where people can enrich their lives with learning, music, and conversation”

*David Steinhardt, Senior
Rabbi at BTC*

said David Steinhardt, Senior Rabbi at B'nai Torah Congregation. “It has become very clear to us that Jewish learning is not only about the acquisition of knowledge, but it is also an important shared experience. We invite the community to come, explore, learn, share and discuss.”

B'nai Torah is also celebrating 10 years of being the home to the Florence Melton School of Adult Jewish Learning. The Melton School of Adult Jewish Learning engages adult learners in a life-enhancing study of Jewish texts and ideas that nurtures and deepens Jewish community worldwide. Through classes (both in-person and online) Melton learners become part of a worldwide movement of committed learners who are empowered to enrich Jewish life. The 2023/2024 Schedule features classes in person and via zoom on Mondays and Thursdays in the mornings, afternoons and evenings.

With hundreds of class and program offerings, this year's cultural arts programming is more robust and diverse than ever before, according to Elysa Stark, Director of Programming and Membership at B'nai Torah Congregation. "There is truly something for everyone."
